Franklin P. Mason II, written 2023

Gertrude Hildreth Mason was born on 26 July 1889 at 1033 West 7th Street in Wilmington, Delaware. She was the daughter of Franklin Pierce Mason (1853-1928) and Ann Elizabeth Hildreth (1854-1923).

Refer to "A Brief History of Franklin Pierce Mason I and Ann Elizabeth Hildreth":
Mason - 1853-1928 Franklin Pierce Mason I & Ann Elizabeth Hildreth.pdf (franklinmason.com)

Gertrude lived with her parents (and/or other members of her family) for much of her life. She was active in the Reformed Episcopal Church, at least until her mid-twenties, but probably much longer.

Gertrude was said to be "an accomplished artist, having spent a number of years in study in the leading art schools in New York".[1]

From about 1912 to 1915 (age 23 to 26), Gertrude was an art teacher in the Hudson Falls schools, in Upstate New York (on the Hudson River, about 50 miles north of Albany).

After that job concluded, Gertrude, age 26, returned to her parents' home in Brooklyn at 722 Chauncy Street. (Her sister, Helen, and her family were also living there at that time.) Gertrude was listed as a "Drawing Supervisor" in the 1915 New York State Census.

In June of 1915, Gertrude had a one-person art exhibit at O.R. Howe store in Hudson Falls, which was well received.

In the summer of 1916, Gertrude had a "situation with the regents' department at the state capitol".[2]

In December of 1917, Gertrude lived at 123 Broad Street in Oneida, New York.[3]

Gertrude was a student at the Pratt Institute[4] in Brooklyn, and in 1922, at the age of 33 years, Gertrude graduated from that institution with a degree in Commercial Illustration.

On 09 Oct 1923, at age 34 years, Gertrude married Charles Endrich in Queens, New York. Charles was an accountant. They spent their honeymoon in Bermuda. The addresses on the ship's documents showed that they both resided at Gertrude's father's home at 123 Pierson Street (139-47 87th Avenue) in Queens. This marriage did not last long, however. Gertrude and Charles were still together in 1925, and they were still living with Gertrude's father in Queens at that time. And in August of 1929, Gertrude received a postcard addressed to "Mrs. Gertrude Endrich". However, the 1930 US Census shows Gertrude living with her brother, with her last name reverted to "Mason" rather than "Endrich".

When Gertrude's father died in 1928, she continued to live in his house, which she had inherited.

Gertrude was a loving and devoted daughter and sister.

Gertrude's brother, Willard Cassidy Mason, was ill in the later part of his life with cancer of the pancreas. Even though he never divorced his wife, he and she were estranged some time before 1930. Willard died in 1934. From the time that Willard and his wife separated until his death, Gertrude cared for her brother. They lived together in their father's house in the Queens.

Gertrude’s caring extended to her nephew, her brother’s son, Willard Franklin Mason.

When Franklin Pierce Mason, died in 1928, he left his grandson, Willard F. an inheritance of $1000 to be administered by Gertrude. Unfortunately, because of the Great Depression, most of the money was lost in investments that crashed with the stock market. Even though the loss of the money was not her fault, Gertrude felt responsible. Therefore, she paid 100% of Dad's college tuition for all four years of his higher education out of her own pocket. The tuition at Brooklyn Polytech, where Willard F. went to college, was $360 per semester. Thus, Gertrude expended far more than the $1000 inheritance. (Gertrude was a schoolteacher; and unlike many others, she did not lose her job during the depression.)

Gertrude’s caring continued after her nephew was married and on his own.

In 1947, the family of Willard F. moved to 6 Oak Ridge Park in Westport, Connecticut. The land acted as the down payment, and the house cost $17,000 to construct. The cost of the house drained the last penny of resources that Willard F. had. However, that left the second story unfinished. Gertrude contributed an additional $3,000 to finish the second story, which allowed more room for the family of six, with one more on the way.

By 1936, Gertrude had moved to an apartment about 7 miles from the house: 151-10 35th Avenue, Queens, New York.[5] (This location was less than a mile from Bowen House. See below.)

In 1950, Gertrude lived with her sister, Helen, at 150-15 86th Avenue, Queens, New York, which her sister owned and had owned for some time (at least from 1937).

Helen also owned a home “Shore Oaks” at 7972 Great Peconic Bay Boulevard in Mattituck (Laurel), Suffolk County, Long Island, New York. Helen and Gertrude spent the summers there until Helen’s death in 1956.

In the last years of her life, Gertrude lived in Flushing, Queens. At that time, she wrote a poem, “The Weeping Beech Tree”.

The Weeping Beech tree was planted in 1847 (by Samuel Bowne Parsons).

Gertrude was born in 1889. Thus, the tree was 42 years of age when Gertrude was born. The Hildreth family owned a home at 286 Amity Street from 1883 to 1924. Gertrude used to visit her grandmother (and later her uncle, George Otley Hildreth) when they lived in that house.

Let us say that in 1900, at age 11, Gertrude visited her grandmother at the Amity Street house. In 1900, the Weeping Beech tree was 53 years of age. It could well have been quite famous by that time. Thus, it could well have been that Gertrude, with other members of her family, might have visited this tree. It was, after all only

YOUNG PEOPLE CONFER.

400 Members of Reformed Episcopal Churches Attend Convention.

The Twenty-seventh annual convention of the Young People's Conference of the Reformed Episcopal Churches of New York and the vicinity was held this morning in the First Reformed Episcopal Church, Madison avenue and Fifty-fifth street, Manhattan. There were in attendance people from all the churches about Greater New York to the number of about 400.

The morning programme extended from 10:30 o'clock till shortly after noon. The Rev. Dr. William D. Stevens, pastor of the First Reformed Church, opened the convention with an address of welcome, in which he reviewed the history of the conference during the twenty-seven years of its existence, and especially during the past year. He spoke words of encouragement to the young people in their work and told of the good results of their labors in church circles. Miss Gertrude H. Mason of the Reformed Church of the Reconciliation, Brooklyn, read a paper on "The Place of Industries in Elementary Education."

The Constitution of the United States and the church was the subject chosen by the Rev. Dr. Manuel Ferrando, director of Christ's Mission. Dr. Ferrando's address was long and interesting. The closing prayer and benediction was read by Bishop R. L. Rudolph, D.D.

The churches participating in the convention were Reconciliation and Grace of Brooklyn, Redemption of Greenpoint, Emanuel of Newark, N. J.; St. Luke's of Murray Hill, N. J.; St. Paul's of Woodlawn, Cornerstone of Newburgh, N. Y., and Christ Church of South Ozone Park. This afternoon, from 2:30 till 5 o'clock, there will be a second session, at which several interesting addresses and papers will be read.

SOCIETY GIRLS AID AT CHURCH FAIR

IN CHARGE OF BOOTHS IN REFORMED EPISCOPAL CHURCH OF RECONCILIATION.

Silk gowned young society women were conspicuous last night as dispensers of luxuries and useful and ornamental articles at the opening of the fair that is to last throughout the week in the Reformed Episcopal Church of the Reconciliation at Nostrand and Jefferson avenues. The fair is being conducted in conjunction with the celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversary of the church. The celebration began with a service Sunday morning. In the evening Frederick Townsend Martin, the millionaire philanthropist and society leader, was the principal speaker at the evening service.

All social engagements for the week are to be foregone by the young women in order that they may devote themselves to the pleasurable task of disposing of a considerable stock of fancy and useful goods that the members of the congregation and their friends donated to the fair. The proceeds are to be placed in the church fund.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Riegelmann officially opened the fair an address of welcome and an eulogy of the church and the accomplishments of the pastor, the Rev. Percy T. Edrop.

Miss Gertrude Mason was in charge of the refreshment booth; Miss Hazel Sykes, lemonade well; Miss Edith Radcliffe, the candy table; Franklin P. Mason, the art gallery; Mrs. George Williams, the toilet table; Miss Bertha Wilson, miscellaneous table; Mrs. William Boers, grocery table; Miss Anna Seibel, the Klondike; Miss Dorothy Seibel, the toy table; Mrs. Claude Comstock, dolls; Mrs. Franklin P. Mason, aprons and fancy goods; Mrs. Jane Evans, cake.

The Ladies' Aid Society, the Young Ladies' Aid Society and the C. H. C. Guild were well represented among the workers. Miss Gertrude Mason is the President of the Young Ladies Society, Miss Edith Radcliffe, Vice President, Miss Bertha Wilson, Treasurer and Miss Elsie Parseghian, Secretary.

The officers of the Ladies' Aid Society are: Mrs. Franklin P. Mason, president; Mrs. Jane Evans, Vice President; Miss Clifford, Secretary and Treasurer.

148 GRADUATES OF PRATT TOLD TO FORGE AHEAD

Elmer A Sperry Speaker at Commencement Exercises—Get Certificates

One hundred and forty-eight students were graduated last night at the thirty-fourth annual commencement exercises of the evening classes of the Pratt Institute, in the Ryerson street auditorium. Among the graduates were nine young ladies who had completed the prescribed three-year course of evening study in the School of Fine and Applied Arts and in the School of Science and Technology.

Elmer A. Sperry, head of the Sperry Gyroscope Company, who addressed the students, gave them high praise for the persistence they displayed in attending their courses under the discouraging conditions that are unavoidable when one uses up one's best energies in working by day and attempts to study at night. This determination, he thought, augured well for the future success of the graduates.

"There is no limit," he said, "to the success you may achieve through your persistence. I will let you know that the sky is the limit of your possibilities if you are willing to pay the price."

"There are two elements necessary to success. The first is willingness to pay the price. The second is the price. We must take our hats off to nature, for with work and industry she has given us the means to pay the price. There is undoubtedly no miscarriage in persistence. Nature never cheats you.

"We must always remember to do the days work as well as we can, and having done so we have paid the price and may be sure to be rewarded with the goods of the world."

As an illustration of what can be accomplished through persistence, Mr. Sperry proceeded to tell of the difficulties and discouragements he had to face, with the sheer force of persistence, when he was occupied in inventing the gyroposcope stabilizer.

Mr. Pratt Presents Certificates.

The certificates of graduation were presented by Charles Pratt, assistant secretary of the Board of Trustees, who presided. He told of the founding of the institute and of the purpose for which it was established, namely, to help those who were willing to make sacrifices in order to forge ahead. The
