Notes for Josiah Stanborough:

From: <https://sites.rootsweb.com/~tmetrvlr/bio29.html>

Josiah Stansborough was probably born about 1600 in Canons Ashby, Northamptonshire, England. He was the son of William Stanborowe. He died in 1661 at Sagg (now Sagaponack) on Long Island, New York. The will of Josiah Stansborough is dated July 6, 1661 and was proved September 3, 1661.

Frances Grandsden, one of seven daughters of Henry Grandsden of Turnbridge, Kent, England. Frances died before 1657, as Josiah married again in 1657 to Alice Wheeler, widow of Thomas Wheeler of New Haven, Connecticut.

Josiah is first mentioned in records as being in Lynn, Massachusetts in 1637, when he was allotted 100 acres of land. In 1640, he was one of the eight original "undertakers" who formed the new settlement at Southampton, Long Island. The settlers journeyed by way of Peconic Bay, landed at North Sea on the spot that became known as Conscience Point, now marked by a boulder monument. This marker and a bronze tablet was placed there by the Colonial Society of Southampton. It is recorded that the name is due to the remark of one of the women on landing, "For conscience sake, I'm on dry land once more."

By the close of 1640, it is mentioned that "fourty families" -- numbering from one to two hundred settlers -- made the new town of Southampton their home. The first period of Southampton history shows an unusually large proportion of men of intelligence, ability and energy, being respectable both in character and education.

Josiah Stansborough founded Sagg, known today as Sagaponack. He had purchased large amounts of land there and sold his home in Southampton in May of 1656. His house stood at the south end of Sagg Main St. on what is known as the "Stanborough Lot".

Baptized on Oct. 5, 1595 at Boston, Lincolnshire. He matriculated pensioner from Emmanuel College at Cambridge in 1611, B.A. 1614/15, M.A. 1618. Ordained a deacon at Peterborough on Mar. 16, 1616/17, and made a priest the following day, he ministered in Lincolnshire before removing to New England. He married his first wife Olive Ingoldsby (b. 1602-d. by 1627), daughter of Rev. Anthony Ingoldsby and Dorcas Bulkeley Ingoldsby, on Apr. 20, 1620 at Fishtoft, Lincolnshire, who was the mother of his son Thomas James. After her death he remarried Elizabeth, whose maiden name is unknown at present. He arrived with his family in Boston, Massachusetts on June 5, 1632 aboard the ship 'William and Frances'. On Oct. 14, 1632 he and his wife Elizabeth were dismissed from the Boston Church to participate in the organization of a new church at Charlestown, Massachusetts where they were admitted as founding members on Nov. 2, 1632. A restless and 'very melancholic man' his time there was short lived, he relocated to Providence, Rhode Island in 1637, to New Haven, Connecticut in 1639, and in 1642 he was a missionary to Lower Virginia. In 1649 he left New Haven and permanently returned to England.

Notes for Rev Adam Blackman:

Rev. Adam Blakeman was born in Gnosall, Staffordshire, England, June 10, 1596. His birthplace is frequently misspelled in websites due to transcription errors from old records.

Blakeman matriculated (entered college) at Christ Church, Oxford, May 28, 1617. He was a preacher for some years in Great Bowden, Leicestershire, and Derbyshire, and in 1638 went to Connecticut. In 1639 he led the original settlers of Stratford, Connecticut, and served as the first minister of the church until his death, 7 September 1665.

Stratford, like a number of other New England towns of the 1630s, was founded as a Utopian community by Puritans fleeing persecution in England. The town's minister was also its political leader, and ruled both his flock and his town as the unquestioned representative of God.

During the 17th century (and until well into the 19th century) consistent spelling of names was not enforced, due to lower literacy levels and the absence of the standardization required by government bureaucracies. By 1800 Blakeman's descendants most often used the Blackman spelling of the name, although in the 18th century some alternated between the two spellings three times in successive generations. Records of Christ Church, Oxford use the Blakeman spelling and the name Blakeman is still common in Coventry UK. (Office for National Statistics, UK Census 2001)

Notes for John Curtiss:

The following is from Al Field of the Curtis/s Family Association: There is no ship record documenting John Curtis' arrival in New England, which is probably what you would like to find (as would we). Using Ancestry.com to search The Great Migration Volumes, the first "hit" for John Curtis appears under William Curtis of Roxbury in Volume I, page 501: "William's uncle John Curtis came to Roxbury by 1639 and then moved on to Wethersfield." The Y-DNA test results of William's descendants match those of John's descendants, and I believe this statement refers to your ancestor John. Wish there were more!
